

Letter of recommendations

At the end of 2015 Artur Suchwalko from QuantUp company delivered training session, Data Mining, for International Paper's employees. The main goal of this training session was to grow analytical skills that are used in decision making process and business recommendations.

The scope of this training session was: investigation of relationship between phenomena, analysis and forecasting of time-dependent data, elements of more advanced data visualization, and presentation of results of analytical work.

The training session was individually crafted for International Paper, using the original and live data from the company. The participants worked in groups and the training session was really interactive. The atmosphere was engaging and encouraging to ask questions related to the areas discussed. The members of the groups shared feedback that they really enjoyed the training, especially with data visualization and presentation.

The main outcome that is visible after the training session is the usage of various analytical methods and supporting business recommendations with the data.

We confirm that if you need non-standard training session or analytical support you can count on QuantUp company. We recommend them as a solid and professional business partner.
